Connecting with the World by Improving Your English Proficiency: Wenzao Held the New Student Orientation and Falling in Love with English Camp

【新聞來源：中央社】Nationally known for its foreign language education, Wenzao Ursuline University of Languages held two rounds (each lasted for five days and four nights) of an English camp for students newly admitted to the 4-Year College Program before the semester starts. The camp was dedicated to helping Wenzao's freshmen fall in love with English. With tradition and good reputation, this camp integrated new student orientation, campus tour, English test, welcome parties held by student associations of various departments, opening ceremony, and evening performance. Moreover, the University especially incorporated the two-credit English course, "Introduction to College English: Strategies and Applications", into the camp this year, enabling the freshmen to have a whole new experience in English learning from memorizing vocabulary to English speaking and presentation practice. The diversity of the course and activity attracted the freshmen to enthusiastically sign up for the camp.

The opening ceremony of the camp was hosted by President Margaret Mei-Hua Chen, who led Level 1 Directors and heads of departments to warmly welcome the freshmen (newly becoming Wenzaorians). President Chen gave a speech in English to encourage all the freshmen to seize the day and enjoy learning, while conveying the spirit of Wenzao: life, language, and leadership (3Ls). Moreover, President Chen issued camp badges to the representatives of each team of students in person, hoping that they can make good use of the rich language resources of all the departments at Wenzao to improve their competitiveness. Faculty members who took turns to walk onto the stage also gave speeches in English to introduce courses offered by the University, academic affairs resources, exchange and internship programs, university social responsibility, green campus, international exchange programs, and other information.
